

Ongoing sustainability and CR support for Alliance Data

Client's objectives

When we began working with Alliance Data in 2012, they were looking to ramp up their Corporate Responsibility (CR) reporting and business integration efforts to better meet, and exceed, the growing expectations of their clients, investors and associates, especially as they moved into the S&P 500 Index. They also wanted to be more strategic – identifying and capitalizing on the business value of sustainability.

Alliance Data and its businesses comprise North America's largest, most comprehensive provider of transaction-based, data-driven marketing and loyalty solutions.

The project

Since 2012, we have supported Alliance Data in the development of their CR strategy and reporting activities. This has included everything from initial development of their CR strategy and focus areas, engaging internal stakeholders to develop the outline and storyboard for each report, data collection, goal setting, implementation of a CR data management system, development of their annual GHG inventories, and more.

Anthesis has also supported Alliance Data in a refresh of their materiality assessment with a broader outreach campaign targeting external stakeholders. The outcomes of the materiality assessment helped validate their existing CR strategy and focus, identify risks and opportunities, and inform their strategic planning process.

In addition to completing project-specific work, Anthesis has regularly advised Alliance Data on a variety of sustainability issues as they arise (including energy management, science-based target setting, associate engagement campaigns, CDP and other rating schemes).
